ENGLAND TEACHES THE UNITED STATES

"Especially should we be on our guard against the varieties of false Americanism, which profess to maintain American institutions, while dethroning American ideals." These words recently uttered by Charles E. Hughes, former Secretary of State, in a memorable address to the American Bar Association. It is these words that aptly describe the action of Secretary of State Kellogg in denying to Saklatvala, Parsee communist and member of the British Parliament, the privilege of entering the United States. It was a variety of false Americanism, Kellogg, we believe, was convinced that he was protecting the American public from what he considers to be the menacing philosophy of the British M.P. Yet he was not doing so. On the contrary, he was harming it. It were far better that any man be allowed to air his views, be they as heretical as they may be, than that men high in office and the council of the Republic be guilty of violating the cherished American principle of freedom of speech. The issue in this case must not be confused. It is not that of communism versus capitalism. The issue at stake is simply one of free speech. Shall an economic heretic be denied the privilege of stating his case? Shall the American tradition of untrammeled discussion of public issues be openly flouted? Those are the real issues. It does seem ironical that a country cradled in heresy, built up by the world's heretics, should now turn and demand economic conformity even of visitors. We wonder what Thomas Jefferson would say about Kellogg's action. How his spirit must groan, and his bones protest! All those ideals, which he envisioned as the soul of the new republic are being gradually forgotten. Democracy rests on freedom of speech. Destroy that, and democracy is gone. Democracy in the United States is slowly being crushed as the false Americanism of the Kellogs gains the upper hand. America needs some of the old-fashioned spirit. America needs some of the reverence which at one time distinguished her. America needs to have the spirit of a Jefferson enshrined in her. America can take a lesson in democracy from Great Britain. There the communists may speak and agitate, and have some right to advocate their ideas and ideals, as have the conservatives and liberals. That is as it should be. That is genuine democracy. England may be a kingdom and America a republic, but the republic seems to be less democratic than the kingdom. All of which confirms our opinion that it is not the form of government that is most important, but it is the spirit that animates it. What United States officials, like Kellog, need is a thorough review in the writings of Jefferson. They are dethroning American ideals, while professing to maintain American institutions.

CIVILIZATION MARCHES ON

Civilization is making headway in Africa, under the tutelage of the French and with the assistance of cannons, aeroplanes, bombs and the other war paraphernalia of enlightened states. We wonder what the Riff philosopher whose musings are disturbed by bombing planes, which hurl their deadly missiles on defenceless villages and their inhabitants, must think of the White Man's civilization. How can the yellow races swallow the hokum of the "White Man's burden"? The White Man goes to Asia and Africa, not to teach and to elevate, but he goes there to exploit and traffic. He bears no burden. He puts a burden on the native inhabitants. To China he brings opium. From the Congo he steals rubber. To the Riffs he is bringing oppression, and they are revolting. Why shouldn't they? We believe in freedom. We believe in self-determination. We believe that the French have no moral right to rule the Riffs against their wishes. White civilization may have something to give to the coloured races, but it can never make that gift under the protection of bayonets and cannon. We want to see armies sent to the more uncivilized races, but we want those armies to go armed with text-books, pencils and ideals. If the White Man is going to become a lasting influence on the more backward races, it must be an influence brought, not by the power of right arms, but by the power of right thoughts.

THE DAY OF ATONEMENT

Sunday evening, September 27, commences for Jewish people all over the world the twenty-four hours of prayer and fasting called Yom Kippur, or the Day of Atonement. It is the concluding day of the ten penitential days which began last Saturday on the New Year. These ten days are set apart from all others in the year as a period of reflection and soul examination.

A beautiful and solemn service is held in all synagogues that night throughout the world. The music that evening is striking and soul-stirring. The pulpit coverings are all in white to emphasize the sacredness of the occasion, and the opening melody is the traditional "Kol Nidre," which is known in all lands. According to tradition, and long believed, this melody arose during the days of the Spanish Inquisition. In order to save their lives, Jews outwardly practised Christian rites and professed that religion. Every Yom Kippur Eve during the hours of darkness, Jewish Christians, or as these secret believers were called, Maranos, annually pledged allegiance to the God of Israel.

The Day of Atonement traces back to the Bible. "On the tenth day of this seventh month is the Day of Atonement; a holy convocation shall it be unto you, and ye shall fast, and ye shall offer an offering made by fire unto the Lord. And no manner of work shall ye do on this same day; for it is a day of atonement, to make an atonement for you before the Lord, your God." (27, 28.) From Bible days to the present, wherever the Jew has lived, this solemn day has been most rigidly observed by twenty-four hours of fasting and withdrawing from all active commercial enterprises.

The following morning services begin early and continue until sundown without interruption. Frequently a special service is held around noontime for the children. Strangely enough, despite the feeling of awe and sanctity which clothes Yom Kippur in our day, there are Bible verses which indicate that originally it was an occasion of joy and gladness, when the young men and young women freely gather for a fall celebration. All evidences of social enjoyment have been dropped, and to-day the Jewish people in every part of the universe consider this Day of Atonement as an occasion of "at-one-ment" with their God. The service concludes at sundown with the blowing of the Shofar, or ram's horn, after which the people return to their homes and their several occupations.—"Jewish Criterion."

OPPOSITE EATON'S

A Love Drama of the Italian Ghetto

By CECIL ROTH

The ponderous tomes of the rabbinical literature, as it is popularly conceived, would be the last place to which one would turn to find material of any human interest. But law must of necessity deal with life; and fact, in spite of the fatuous proverb, is sometimes stranger than fiction. Accordingly, in the arid wastes of Talmudic casuistry one may occasionally find embedded some green oasis to comfort and refresh the weary heart of the studious pilgrim. Of these, however, none can surely surpass for sheer dramatic interest (and also, incidentally, for the light it throws upon Jewish social life in bygone times) one story unfolded in the Pahad Isaac (the great Talmudic encyclopaedia of Isaac Lampronti, a Ferrarese rabbi of the eighteenth century), under the heading of Safek (Doubt,) dealing with an instance of a disputed marriage. Over ninety pages of the work are devoted to the reproduction of correspondence, responsa and other documents concerning this case, which roused so much interest in its day. In the account which follows no attempt has been made to enter, on the one hand, into the intricacies of the casuistic discussion, nor, on the other, to improve the story by the addition or alteration of a single fact. The tale is told as far as possible just as it occurred.

The scene is laid in the old-world city of Urbino. Here a considerable nucleus of Jews had gathered when, as the capital of an independent duchy, it was a centre of enlightenment and tolerance; and they remained, though sadly reduced in numbers and in wealth, when, owing to the extinction of the ruling house, the territory fell under the sway of the Holy See. In the Ghetto of this place in the early years of the eighteenth century there lived an orphan girl, Consola Moscato, of considerable beauty, if contemporary accounts are to be believed, and much sought after by the youth of the city. But her choice fell upon a young Solomon Vita Castello—even in the Ghetto, Nature would have her way—and a match was arranged between them. As was not unusual in those days, the girl, whose father was dead and mother married for the second time, came to live together with him in the house of an uncle, pending their final union. Economic conditions were, however, bad. The year stipulated for the marriage passed, and then another, and still nothing was done. At length more active steps were taken. One Thursday at the end of June, 1727, Castello purchased from an itinerant Jewish merchant a dress for the bride to wear on her wedding day "a chamber habit with farthingale and stomacher to match, of crimson cloth with flowers of gold-coloured silk," for which he paid no less than twelve zecchins; and we are given a glimpse of the delighted bride going to the tailor with her mother, Signora Diana, to try on the dress. Just after, however, the bridegroom fell ill, and his mind became affected. One day he escaped from control and threw himself down a well. Help came so quickly that he was saved; and he was henceforth kept bound hand and foot to prevent another attempt against himself. Thereafter his madness took another turn. At intervals of lucidity, indeed (or what it was convenient to consider lucidity!) he promised to divide his property between the Synagogue and his native place and the Holy Land. But in his relapses he commenced to call upon the Saints to come to his help—naturally enough, seeing that this was the everyday vocabulary of those with whom he was accustomed to mix. In horror his kinsfolk stopped his mouth, and told him to say Shema. He replied with blasphemies. The matter became known abroad, and priests, avid for another soul to save, were sent to listen to his ravings. This caused serious preoccupation, and not on behalf of the young man alone. Cases were frequent enough in which persons had been seized from the Ghetto and forced to the baptismal font in fulfillment of the supposed wish of a converted relative with some sort of moral claim, however flimsy, to authority over them. Were the young man taken to the House of Catechumens, there was every danger that his promised bride would be carried off by force after him. In terror she fled back to her mother's house. This, however, was not enough guarantee. To save her, only one means was possible. With her full consent she hastily went through the ceremony of betrothal to a third party, Moses Samuel Guglielmi (Friday, October 17th, 1727). In the hurry there was no time to procure the usual plain gold ring, and one inset with jewels was used. She was immediately dressed and treated as a betrothed woman. Guglielmi himself certainly took the matter seriously, and set about kissing and fondling the maiden to an extent which hsocked the prim eye-witnesses. Thus it was considered that, even if things came to the worst, she could no longer be presumed to be under the authority of Castello, with whom no formal ceremony of betrothal has as yet taken place.

It was not long, however, before the latter recovered his health and senses. He found to his horror that during his illness his property and his bride had alike been alienated. On the other side matters were no better, and a visitor once found the girl and her mother absolutely distraught, smiting their heads and unable to eat, in remorse at what had happened. Natural affection reasserted itself. Consola expressed her desire of cancelling all that had happened and returning to the man of her choice, and the two families supported her intention. They neglected, however, the formal act of betrothal which had intervened. The Council of the community, appealed to by the Rabbi, warned them repeatedly, but in vain, that what they were proposing was illegal. The Rabbi, Judah Vita Guglielmi, was presumably a relative of the rival claimant, and his impartiality was not above question. The young couple were brought together one day, and in the greatest secrecy, behind closed doors, the full marriage ceremony was performed. To justify their action, they appealed, firstly, to the anterior contract that had existed between them, which made the intervening betrothal invalid; secondly, to the bride having been misled at the time of that ceremony into believing that Castello's illness was incurable; and, thirdly, to the technical irregularity of the use in the function of a jewelled ring, of which, indeed, it was noticed that the bride, womanlike, had taken particular notice. Yet another plea was whispered, more in keeping with the place and age, and sworn witnesses were ultimately forthcoming to substantiate it. It was alleged that Guglielmi, hopelessly enamoured with Consola, had recourse to enchantment to break the bond of love which attached her to Castello. Two Jews and—horror of horrors!—a Gentile sorceress had been employed to exercise the black art on his behalf, ultimately with success. The other side had been driven to follow suit, and through the magical powers of a priest of Cesena, aided by the repetition of six psalms, the spell had been broken so that the young couple returned to their pristine love. The time of this happy consummation is given with most circumstantial accuracy at about two o'clock in the afternoon on Thursday, November 12th, 1727. It was only after this that they had taken the final step.

The Rabbi of Urbino, seeing his authority flouted, had only one path before him: he appealed to the spiritual head of the neighbouring community of Pesaro, Jacob Israel Bemporad, telling him apparently that he had looked into the writings of Christian theologians as well as Jewish before coming to his decision. This in itself was enough to rouse the opposition of the other, who gave it as his opinion that the original contract had sufficient binding force to invalidate the intervening ceremony of betrothal. He submitted his views for approbation to Samson Morpurgo, Rabbi of Ancona, the nearest great community, whose fame was known far and wide. The latter hesitated to decide at once upon so tangled a question, and advised his correspondent to wait to hear the opinions of the Talmudic authorities of other great centres of learning throughout Italy before acting upon his opinion. The other, however, neglected his advice. Upon the following Sabbath, Bemporad and his coadjutator, Isaac d'Urbino, had it proclaimed in the Synagogue that the intermediate ceremony had no validity, and that the match between the young couple was beyond all question legal. Henceforth the two lived together as man and wife.

Thereupon the storm broke. Guglielmi, thus branded publicly (as he had been without any equivocation, privately) as an ignoramus, appealed to all quarters, far and near, against what he regarded as this open immorality. All the rabbinic authority in Italy was involved in the dispute which centered around the love idyll in the obscure Ghetto of Urbino. It was feared that by their high-handed action the Rabbis of Pesora had run the risk of contaminating the pure seed of Israel with the taint of illegitimacy. Even the indulgent Morpurgo declared that the ceremony of marriage should be gone through again after a formal divorce from the rival claimant. Other authorities were less sympathetic to the claims of love in its conflict with law. But certain points of fact were still in doubt, Morpurgo being charged by his colleagues to inquire into them while passing through Pesaro on his way home after a visit to Ferarra; and the matter was complicated by scarcely veiled threats of violence or even bloodshed from the one side or the other if the result were unfavourable. Worst of all, the secular authorities had taken cognisance of the dispute, which was one in which they could not unreasonably claim the right of decision. Tranquillo Vito Corcos, Chief Rabbi of Rome, succeeded, however, in inducing the Papal authorities to abstain from intervention; though, but for his years and infirmities, he would have undertaken the arduous journey in order to inquire into the matter in person on the spot. Bemporad, startled at the opposition which his action had aroused and at the intervention of the revered figure of a Rabbi from Jerusalem, who happened to be in the neighbourhood collecting funds for the Holy Land; succeeded in inducing the young couple to separate until the final decision was reached, and thus to avoid the penalties of excommunication menaced on all sides. The verdict was now not long delayed, all concurring unanimously in a long and closely argued decision arrived at by Solomon David dal Vecchio, scion of a famous family of sages and Rabbi at Senigallia. It was decided that the bride must be formally divorced by both of the rivals for her hand, neither of whom could be legally considered her husband.

The episode was not yet ended. Fiction would here enter upon an account of a lifelong fidelity or of broken hearts. The legalist, while not excluding such romantic possibilities, is satisfied to present only the sordid actuality. Guglielmi, contented with worsting his rival, apparently did what was required of him without demur. Castello, however, was less compliant. He had fought hard for his bride, he had gone to considerable expense on her behalf,

FEDERATION THANKS

In the Montreal district the only organization maintaining a free country camp for Jewish boys is the Bnai Brith, whose camp, on an extensive leased lot at Prefontaine, on the North River, near Ste. Agathe des Monts, gave vacation to about 250 boys. They were looked after by trained camp counsellors and dental and medical attendants. There was a daily programme of camp attractions, swimming instruction, hikes and reading groups. There were about 500 applicants. All in camp were medically examined and weighed before leaving Montreal, by Dr. Joe Leavitt. The boys were escorted from and to the city in groups of sixty by the Bnai Brith camp assistants. Bramson's Yellow Cab Co. had given free taxi service to the boys to the railway station, and the Canadian Pacific Railway had granted reduced fares and reduced rates on all food and merchandise handled in its freight and express cars. Donors and contributions from the members of the Bnai Brith made the undertaking possible. The Federation of Jewish Philanthropies thanks the camp and supervisory staff, among whom were Ratner, Chait, Raginsky, Wolofsky and others; also Lewis Faber (president of the Bnai Brith), and Horace Cohen, joint chairman of the Bnai Brith Camp; Frank Bender, treasurer; Simon Hopmeyer, chairman, equipment committee; and Eddie Barkoff, chairman of food supply and general commissary.

RECEIVER IS APPOINTED FOR U.S.-PALESTINE LINE

New York.—An equity receivership for the American Palestine Lines, Inc., operating the steamship President Arthur, was established on September 11 upon application of Morris J. Feldman, of Newark, N.J., a creditor. Feldman alleges the company owes him $3,000.

Assets of the line, including the President Arthur, which now is on the high seas, are valued at $1,000,000, and liabilities at approximately $300,000. Laurence S. Greenbaum was appointed equity receiver.

The petition stated that an equity receivership had become necessary to save the corporation from the possible effects of a temporary adverse condition. It pointed out that the line was new, the first to ply steamship trade between Palestine and New York, and that time for development was needed.

Federal Judge Thatcher fixed October 3 for a hearing on whether the receivership should be continued. The line was incorporated at Albany in July, 1924. Judge Jacob E. Strahl, of Brooklyn, was elected president. Last October the lines purchased the President Arthur, formerly the German Princess Alice, from the United States Shipping Board, for $60,000. At the same time the company announced its intention of purchasing one or more additional ships from the Shipping Board when trade conditions warranted.

The love of gardening is as old as civilization itself and the profession of Landscape Gardening has developed from the desire for artistic gardens by those who had not the necessary knowledge or time to devote to them.

The Landscape Gardener must use his plants and trees as the artist uses his colours to produce the most perfect and interesting picture possible, but he has the added advantage, and also the added difficulty, that while the painter works with stable colours he works with materials that change from season to season and from year to year as they reach maturity, so that his colour scheme may be quite different in September than it was in May, and the full beauty of the picture only realized after several years.

It is often in the smaller grounds that the greatest benefit is received by having them carefully designed, for it is here that the practical necessities of walks, drives, etc., must be most carefully considered and the planting so arranged that the grounds will seem as spacious as possible.

Mr. Frederick G. Todd commenced the practice of his profession of Landscape Architect over twenty years ago, and among the many important works carried out by him may be mentioned: The planting along the beautiful Rideau Park drives at Ottawa, the National Battlefields Park at Quebec, Bowring Park at St. Johns, Newfoundland, and parks at Winnipeg and many other cities. Shaughnessy Heights at Vancouver is an exceedingly interesting example of town planning carried out for the Canadian Pacific Railway, and among the many private gardens designed are those for the late Sir Edward Clouston, the late Senator Forget, Sir Vincent Meredith, Sir Mortimer Davis, Geo. Rabinovitch, C. W. Lindsay and others.

Rabbi Maxwell H. Dubin, formerly of Temple Beth Israel, San Diego, has resigned from his position, to become the executive director of the personal service committee of the Federation of Jewish Welfare of Los Angeles, the position formerly occupied by Dr. Peiser, who recently passed away.

Mr. and Mrs. Adolph Blumenthal, of Pine Buff, Ark., have announced the betrothal of their daughter, Henrietta, to Rabbi Samuel R. Shillman, of Chattanooga, Tenn. Rabbi Shillman was graduated from the Hebrew Union College in 1924 and has since then been Rabbi of Mizpah Temple, Chattanooga.

Louis Resnick, well known in the St. Louis Jewish community, has been honoured with an award of a special medal by the Government of France for his work in arousing the interest of Americans in the exhibition of household appliances and labour-saving devices to be held in Paris in December. It is one of several which have been awarded by the Department of Public Instruction of the French Republic to Americans who have played a part in its educational campaign in this country through an "American Committee."

DEER-HUNTING TIME NOW

Up in the north woods the boys are already bringing in their game. In the district north of the main line of the Canadian National Railways between Quebec and Winnipeg the moose and deer season opened September 15, and will continue until November 15. Throughout this district which covers millions of acres, big game is always very plentiful and every hunter who goes north is almost sure of bringing back his full complement.

If the huntsman feels that he cannot afford the time to make such an extensive trip, there is no need for him to give up his hunt. From November 5 to 20 the season is open for deer shooting in the country south of the French and Mattawa Rivers, and from October 25 to November 30 in that territory lying north and west of the French and Mattawa Rivers. This district is easy of access and is one of the most famous and popular hunting grounds of Ontario. Keen, dyed-in-the-wool huntsmen go up to this country of trail, river and lake every year and are always successful.

There can be no better vacation than one spent in these Northern Ontario woods. Clean your gun, assemble your kit, and get ready for a real he-man holiday. Any Canadian National Railways Agent will gladly supply you with full hunting information and particulars of special and regular train service.

DEATH OF THE REV. ISIDORE HARRIS

The Rev. Isidore Harris, veteran minister of the West London Synagogue of British Jews, died early on Wednesday morning, July 15, at his residence, 11 Westbourne Terrace Road, W. London. Mr. Harris who was seventy-two on July 6, had been ailing for some time. Nevertheless the news of his death came as a great shock to the Jewish community which contains a very large number of his devoted friends. The funeral was at the West London Synagogue of British Jews, 34 Upper Berkeley Street West, Friday morning. The burial service was conducted by the Rev. Vivian Simmons.

A memorial service was held at the West London Synagogue on July 17.

On the 6th of July, Mr. Harris celebrated his seventy-second birthday. He was born in London, in which city he was educated and where the whole of his activity was passed. His father was the Rev. H. L. Harris, a rabbi of the Hambro Synagogue, much esteemed for his eloquence.

When Mr. Harris was twenty-one, he was elected Preacher and Second Reader at the Barnsbury Synagogue, where he succeeded his future colleague, the Rev. Morris Joseph, who had just then been appointed Minister of the Princes Road Synagogue in Liverpool. During the time that he occupied the pulpit in North London, Mr. Harris married, his wife being the eldest daughter of the Rev. A. L. Green. He remained at Barnsbury for nearly seven years until he succeeded Sir Philip Magnus as assistant minister of the West London Synagogue of British Jews. It was at Berkeley Street that his life-work was done. His colleagues were first Prof. Marks and Dr. Lowy and, later the Rev. Morris Joseph and the Rev. V. Simmons. Mr. Harris served the whole London community. His pastorate extended far beyond the walls of his own synagogue.

For many years, Mr. Harris devoted himself to the cause of the Jewish Religious Education Board. Of this body he was the vice-president and chairman of the Appeal Committee. He was also a member of the Committee of the Jews' Deaf and Dumb Home, and in 1915 he wrote the history of this institution on the occasion of its Jubilee.

Literature had a profound appeal to Mr. Harris. Thus he perceiveid the importance of a careful investigaton of the Falasha Jews in Abyssinia and he assisted Dr. Faitlovitch in collecting funds for this purpose. For the Jewish Historical Society Mr. Harris undertook a journey to Holland in order to investigate the condition of the disused Jewish burial ground at Middleburg. Through Mr. Harris's efforts funds were raised to put the cemetery in order and to renovate the tomb of Samuel Menasseh ben Israel. Mr. Harris embodied his researches in a paper which was read to the Society and which is printed in Vol. 7 of the Transactions. Mr. Harris has contributed articles to the Jewish Encyclopedia.

In 1921 Mr. Harris compiled the only history of the United Synagogues which has ever been written; the occasion was the Jubilee of this organization. One of the most useful books that the Anglo-Jewish Community possesses is the Jewish Year Book, and this was edited by Mr. Harris in succession to the late Dr. Joseph Jacobs.

Sir Matthew Nathan, Governor of Queensland, is about to retire and this event has been made the subject of laudatory addresses of his work during the period of his incumbency. Archbishop Duhig, the head of the Catholic Church in Queensland, paid a striking tribute to his personality and his achievements.

The new synagogue of the Liberal Jewish Society of London was dedicated recently. The rabbi is Israel Mattuck, a graduate of the Hebrew Union College, of Cincinnati, and its leader is Claude G. Montefiore.

A REVIEW OF JEWISH MIGRATION AS RECORDED BY HIAS

Isaac L. Asofsky, general manager of the Hebrew Sheltering and Immigrant Aid Society of America, in a review of Jewish migration the past year, writes:

"The Jewish people, for the most part, unfortunately, is still a wandering people. So it is fitting upon ushering in a New Year to review the state of Jewish migration as it presented itself during 5685, which has just run its course.

"The Hebrew Sheltering and Immigrant Aid Society of America (HIAS), has its fingers on the pulse of Jewish migration and its records tell the story of the Jewish wanderer much more clearly than anything else.

"During the last months of the preceding year, 5684, the new immigration law was passed marking a new departure in the history of the United States of America. Whatever the purpose of the new law, the fact remains that Jews were affected most by its enactment. Although in a measure the Jewish community was prepared for stringent restriction, yet the new statute was not expected to be as rigid as it was. Like a thunderbolt, the new law hit the Jewish emigrants—thousands of them were on the way to this country and who, as is known, were in possession of passports and American visas. They could not go back to their native lands. They could not go on. So there they were dispersed in various countries only permitted to stay on sufferance. It will, however, be remembered that prior to the period in which these emigrants could have remained in these countries expired, Hias sent a commission abroad to investigate conditions on the spot. The commission intervened with the various governments in behalf of the stranded emigrants and succeeded in inducing these to grant a longer stay to these unhappy refugees. The report of the commission is a heartrending tale of misery and of suffering. Never in the history of the forty years during which the Society has functioned was it confronted by such a catastrophic situation as that resulting from the plight of the refugees. If these refugees had been in one country the misery might not have been so great but they were in England and in France and in Roumania and in Lithuania and in Germany, in fact, everywhere in Europe. Immediately energetic measures for their relief had to be undertaken.

"Then besides Europe there was the situation in Cuba, too, calling for immediate action. The situation was complicated by what was transpiring in Canada, the doors of which had been opened for a little while and then closed again. Hias lent its aid, too, very effectively to the Canadian Jewish Community.

"In addition to all these difficulties, there was the general work in Europe which was inaugurated by Hias in 1920 and which had to be continued because conditions had not yet so stabilized themselves as to permit the Jewish communities in Europe to take care of their own problems. When it is remembered that through Hias there was transmitted during the past year from American Jews to their relatives abroad no less than $2,981,634, representing 58,460 remittances, it will be seen how great was the need and how Hias had to function to remedy the situation. Since April, 1920, when the Hias remittance department began to function a total of $22,339,048 have been transmitted to Europe.

"Whilst the volume of Jewish immigration to this country has decreased, the volume of work so far as Hias is concerned has not decreased. Close upon 200,000 American Jews came to Hias for advice and guidance in matters of migration which means that each one of these had some one on the other side on whose behalf something had to be done. These figures only have reference to New York where the headquarters of the Society are located but when the activities of the Hias branches in Baltimore, Boston, Chicago, Philadelphia, San Francisco, Seattle, and the Bureaus at Ellis Island and Washington are added, the figures will be found to be much larger.

"It is not merely because most of the Jews of Europe have relatives here that the eyes of the Jewish world have been turned to American Jewry. Happily the Jews in this country are so situated that they can and might afford that help and that guidance of which unfortunately so many millions of our people stand in sore need.

"In the long years of its work and experience, Hias has learned not to speculate. It faces actual conditions. And so American Jewry as a whole must face these conditions.

"The Jewish people is still a wandering people and no one can tell when it will cease to be that. What the New Year will bring forth no one can venture to prophesy, but Hias knows that it is always well to be prepared.

"And so, as Hias takes a review of the past year as far as Jewish migration is concerned, it says to American Jews: 'You have still to be on guard you have still to watch and protect. The fact that we have restriction of immigration does not mean that the problem is solved. Jewish wanderings are not yet over.' "

JEWISH THEOLOGICAL SEMINARY CLASSES OPEN OCTOBER 18

Every Friday

Ever since Rabbi Foster, of Newark, N.J., speaking at the recent Williamstown Institute of Politics, referred to political Zionism as a dead issue, following an address by Dr. William E. Rappard, of the League of Nations Permanent Mandates Commission, he has been busy explaining himself to the irate Zionists. As editor of the Jewish Chronicle of Newark, he has plenty of elbow room for the purpose and is naturally taking his time. When he has finished saying that there was no controversy at the Institute on the question of Zionism and anti-Zionism, but wholly a question of justice to Zionist leaders who had been slurred; that he spoke in praise of work in Palestine for that section of Israel that desires to live there, Rabbi Foster should explain just what is "a reasonable preparedness programme." Militarists, especially, might like to know from a man who thus proclaims himself their ally:

"It is to be hoped that Defense Day will appeal to the imagination and stir the loyalty of our citizens with as much interest as the Fourth of July. . . . Only blind leaders of the blind and the fanatical sentimentalists can persuade themselves to believe that complete disarmament and peace-talk can prevent war. Men and women of experience and responsible citizens in general know that a rich, powerful and extensive country like ours might easily become the prey of avaricious, ambitious and aggressive peoples. . . . A reasonable preparedness programme cannot be justly interpreted as a warlike gesture."

What Rabbi Foster said at the Institute of Politics won him more adverse criticism than this expression on preparedness ever will and yet this is more important considering that he is a teacher of the young. People will forget whatever it was he said about Zionism, but many will be influenced in favour of war if that is what he leans toward. When Rabbi Stephen Wise last year refused to have any part in the United States Defense Day observance, he said that there were many other ministers and rabbis who would give their sanction to militarism in this way. Rabbi Foster is one of them. His expression from a religious leader is bad enough in war time, when there is the extenuating circumstance of general hysteria, but in peace time it is a gratuitous effort. Of more value than he are those spiritual leaders who raise their voices against war and any sort of preparedness for it, "reasonable" or otherwise.

The Toronto Jewish community has a real problem on its hands with regard to care for incurables among the poor. At present there are about fifteen cases and no place to put them. A recent report sent in to the CANADIAN JEWISH REVIEW by the Hebrew National Association told of a meeting where the establishing of a home for incurables was discussed. There was talk about whether an annex for the purpose should be built on the Old Folks' Home or whether Mount Sinai Hospital should be converted into a home for incurables.

That Mount Sinai Hospital should be mentioned in this connection is worth a few parenthetical remarks. If members of the Hebrew National, who are also supporters of the Hospital, concede that this institution might better serve the community as a home for incurables, the natural conclusion is that, as a hospital, it is not an absolutely vital necessity. A Federation report, printed some time ago in this paper, said that it takes $10,000 a year out of the community pocket to run this little hospital. This would make it appear that the hospital is something of a luxury to satisfy the whims of some people, especially in face of the fact that there are weeks when the Federation cannot mail out cheques to its poor families because there is no money in the bank.

To return to the problem of incurables, here is a case to illustrate what the situation is like: There is a Jewish incurable whose family finds it difficult to keep him. He is not a hospital case and there is not room for him at the Old Folks' Home. The only place to put him is at the jail farm. But, through the efforts of the Federation, he has been placed in the Catholic House of Providence. Yes, actually. The goodness of the mother superior made it possible to admit him without red tape and merely on reliable statement that he is a destitute, incurable man. This was an act of altruism, the sort that draws together human beings of different creeds, and puts the Jewish community in the debt of good Christian people, but the problem remains and its solution is properly within the sphere of the Federation, which is the one big community activity. An annex to the Old Folks' Home seems to be the logical plan. If not, then some other way should be found for discharging this common responsibility in caring for poor incurables.

Social Life about 25 Years Ago—
Do You Remember?—

In Montreal Miss Eugenie Lewis, at Miss Lichtenhein's recital in Victoria College, played two piano numbers and a duo with Miss Lichtenhein. Eli W. Jacobs sailed for England. Miss Pauline Levin, of Sherbrooke, was visiting her aunt, Mrs. J. C. Silver, Durocher Street. S. D. Schultz, of Victoria, B.C., composed and published a souvenir march, "The Charge at Dawn," dedicated to the Canadian heroes of Paardeberg. Mrs. Silver, of Bialostock, Russia, was visiting her sons, J. C. and B. Silver. Miss Rosie Phillips, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. F. Phillips, was married to Z. Gaffin, by Rabbi Hirsch Cohen, uncle of the bride. M. M. Dolitsky, Hebrew poet, was in town for the Jewish Encyclopaedia. Max Freund, of New York, was the guest of his sister, Mrs. S. Fischel, Mackay Street. Justice Davidson, in the Supreme Court, decided that a Jewish witness must be sworn on the Old Testament and by placing the hat on the head. The marriage of Miss Ray Samuel, eldest daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Harris Samuel to Abraham L. Friedman, took place at Drummond Hall. The bride, who was given away by her father, wore pearl white duchesse satin trimmed with real lace and her veil was of silk net caught with sprigs of lilies-of-the-valley. She carried a shower bouquet of white roses and lilies-of-the-valley. The bridesmaids were Misses Carrie Samuel, Annie Samuel, Rebecca Friedman and May Levinson. They were all gowned alike in white organdie muslin trimmed with Valenciennes lace and insertion. Each carried a shower bouquet of pink carnations and smilax. Dr. Lauterman was best man and other attendants were Bernard Samuel and Charles and Ralph Friedman. Rabbi De Sola, who performed the ceremony, gave to the newly married couple an address replete with sound advice and kindly counsel. He felt sure they would adhere to the traditions of the families in maintaining the true Jewish spirit in their new home. A reception followed. The bride and groom spent their honeymoon in Boston and New York. A son was born to Mr. and Mrs. Z. Fineberg; a daughter to Mr. and Mrs. Harry Wener. At a religious school entertainment at the Spanish and Portuguese Synagogue Max Sessenwein presided; Edith Goldberg recited; Irene Levi sang; Moses Lubitz gave an essay on religion; Ross Levi played the cello; Annie Kirschberg read a paper on "The Sabbath." Prizes were given by Mrs. David Levi to Abraham Auerbach, Maud Samuel, Violet Asher, Moses Lubitz, Annie Kirschberg, Nathan Fineberg, Hattie Bloomberg, Bram De Sola, Jennie Michalson and Bennie Miller. Speeches were made by H. Samuel, David Levi, Dr. Hart and J. L. Samuel.

"HADASSAH"

JUDGE DAVID A. LOURIE, FIRST JEW APPOINTED TO MASSACHUSETTS SUPERIOR COURT, RETURNS FROM INTENSIVE STUDY OF JEWISH COLONIZATION IN PALESTINE

Distinguished Boston Jurist Declares Keren Hayesod has Accomplished in Four Years What Otherwise Would Have Required One Hundred Years to Do—In No Other Land Could Jews Have Accomplished Such Miracles of Land Settlement

New York.—Judge David A. Lourie, of Boston, the first Jew in the long history of Massachusetts to be appointed to the Superior Court of that State, returned recently from a Mediterranean cruise with his wife and daughter, during which he made a two weeks' intensive study of Jewish colonization in Palestine.

A leading American Zionist and honorary president of the New England Region of the Keren Hayesod, Judge Lourie, following his first visit to Palestine, declared he was more enthusiastic now than ever before regarding the Jewish accomplishments in the Homeland and predicted that, agriculturally and industrially, Palestine would before long take its place on an equal basis, considering its size, with the other countries of the world.

Judge Lourie made a close study of twenty Jewish colonies throughout the length and breadth of the land and emphasized that the marvels of agricultural colonization he witnessed convinced him that in no other country could the Jewish people adapt themselves so quickly and so successfully to new conditions and set up a thriving, thoroughly Jewish life.

"The Keren Hayesod has accomplished wonders in Palestine," Judge Lourie stated. "Given the funds it has furnished for its programme—inadequate though they have been—combined with the matchless spirit of the Chaluzim, unequalled any other place in the world, and the result has been miracles in modern agricultural settlement, far beyond what could have been achieved by hard-headed practical farmers. The Jews in a few short years have become practical farmers, but they have, with their acquired skill in agriculture, a spirit which can be found nowhere else, which could develop nowhere else.

"I saw colonies established by the Keren Hayesod, flourishing, beautiful garden spots, which a few years ago were barren rocky and sandy wastes. The colony of Dilb lies between two hills. One is a picture of desolation. The other hill is a picture of beauty, with terraced gardens. Jewish farmers, aided by the Keren Hayesod, have accomplished that in the short space of seven years. Without the Keren Hayesod, I feel sure, it would have required one hundred years to accomplish in Palestine what it has been able to do in a little over four years."

Speaking of industrial Palestine, Judge Lourie told how the silicate factory at Tel-Aviv is working three shifts day and night, and still is unable to turn out enough bricks to supply the present intensive building activities in that busy city. The cement factory at Haifa, on which over one million dollars has already been invested, will be opened within two months and will prove a tremendous boom in meeting the lack of building materials, he said. Judge Lourie was also deeply impressed with the excellent work of Hadassah, which he encountered throughout Palestine. Mrs. Lourie, also active in Zionist work, is President of the Boston Hadassah.

Judge Lourie was invited to make two addresses on Zionism to the passengers of the Tuscania, which included many leading ministers and church workers, visiting Rome and the Holy Land. His second address, following the visit of the party to Palestine, made many sympathizers and friends for the Zionist cause. One Christian lady expressed a desire to join Hadassah, while the president of a leading Christian congregation in Ohio told the Judge that he wanted to organize a campaign in his congregation to raise money for the rebuilding of the Jewish Homeland.

As a memorial to her husband, Leopold Wineman, who died on April 21, 1923, Mrs. Henrietta B. Wineman, of 308 East Kirby Avenue, Detroit, Mich., has announced a gift of $75,000 to the United Jewish Charities for the purpose of erecting a community centre and clinic on a plot of ground acquired by the charities some time ago on Holbrook Avenue, east of Oakland. The building, which will be known as the Leopold Wineman Health Centre, will be erected immediately upon the completion of the plans being prepared by Albert Kahn, architect.

Leopold Wineman, in whose honour the gift was made, was born in Cincinnati and, before coming to Detroit, in 1893, lived in Chicago. He founded the People's Outfitting Company, of which his sons, Henry and Andrew Wineman, are now president and secretary, respectively. He was actively interested in Jewish charitable and philanthropic institutions.

A movement has been started in Spain by Ignacio Bauer, the president of the Jewish community of Madrid, to raise a fund for the purpose of erecting a suitable monument on the grave of Maimonides in Tiberias.

DO YOU KNOW HARRY PINSLER?

Joseph Pinsler, of Romen, Roumania, is looking for his son, Harry Pinsler, whose last address was 56 Kensington Avenue, Toronto, Ont.

A modern Hebrew school for girls has been opened in Denver, Col., under the direction of Rabbi M. Burstein. The aim is to establish a thoroughly organized Hebrew School for girls. There will be for beginners' classes where the fundamentals of the Hebrew language will be taught according to the most modern methods. Here the younger girls will learn to speak, read and write Hebrew.

Professor Robert Kahn, of Berlin, a brother of Otto H. Kahn, of New York, just celebrated his sixtieth birthday. He is known throughout Europe as a composer and pianist of the first rank. Since 1898 he has been professor of theory and composition at the Berlin Academy of Music.

Hon. A. C. Ratshesky, of Boston, is the national treasurer of the nation-wide campaign for $500,000 to restore U.S. Frigate "Constitution," known as "Old Ironsides," and now moored in the Charlestown Navy Yard.

According to an estimate of the statistical section of the Palestine Zionist Executive, the Jewish population of Palestine, which stood at 115,151 on June 1, 1925, has increased 100 per cent. in four years and five months.

THE HART HOUSE STRING QUARTET

Through the efforts of the Honourable Mr. Vincent Massey, Toronto can now boast of a permanent string quartet, which can compare favourably with any similar organization in the world.

After two years of very careful rehearsing and daily practices, the Hart House String Quartet—Geza de Kresz, Harry Adaskin, Milton Blackstone, Boris Harabourg—has reached a level which will be a source of great pride to Canadians, when these artists will carry the name of Toronto across the line to the U.S.A. and, in the near future, to England and the European continent.

Toronto is especially fortunate in being the home of this unique group of players, for otherwise there would not be such a splendid group of concerts as the regular Monday night series in Hart House Theater, Queen's Park. These take place once a month and every care has been taken to keep the price of admission well within the means of all who love good music. For those who cannot take advantage of the Monday Night Series, there will be the opportunity to hear these artists in a series of five Sunday Night Concerts in the Auditorium, 216 Jarvis Street. These concerts are given under the auspices of the String Quartet Club, and are open to members only. The price of membership is $3.00 per year and includes free admission to the Sunday Night Series.

Already the Quartet has booked more than fifty concerts for next season, and with a Western tour in March, the number should easily reach seventy-five. The success of their playing is in a measure due to the attractive programmes that they present.

MATERNITY AID

The first regular meeting of the Hebrew Maternity Aid Society (Child Welfare) will be a linen shower for the benefit of the Talmud Torah Bazaar, at the Zionist Building, 206 Beverley street, Tuesday, September 29, at 8 p.m. Reports will be read on the Rest Home, and various other activities.

ZANGWILL BOYS

The Zangwill L. A. C. held their opening meeting last Monday, at the home of B. Avruskin. A letter was read by the literary director from Israel Zangwill, in which he expressed appreciation for using his name for the club. New executive: President, H. R. Moscoe; vice-president, J. Borovay; member without portfolio, M. Weiner; secretary, P. Moscoe; treasurer, B. Avruskin.

IN MEMORIAM

In sad but loving remembrance of our Dear Beloved Mother, Esther Sula Greenberg, who passed away September 11, 1923, first day Rosh Hashonah.

Two years have passed, our hearts are still sore,
For you, Dear Mother, we miss more and more,
You were the sweetest Mother that God ever sent,
But to those that loved you, you were only lent.

You left on earth some treasures, that since you've gone we've lost
But your sweet tender memory we hold at any cost.
You left behind some aching hearts, that loved you most sincere,
That never did, nor never will, forget you, Mother Dear.

Sadly missed by her sorrowing children, Solly, Lena, Hannah and Lou, and grandchild, Stanley.

LOEW'S

Three names that mean a very great deal indeed to the fans "in the know" shine forth clearly and reflect much credit on the film production, "Not So Long Ago," which will be presented at Loew's next week. Sidney Olcott, a Canadian who has risen to the front ranks of the directorial brigade, had full charge of the production. His pictures are recognized for their pictorial beauty (he made "Monsieur Beaucaire," you remember, with Valentino starred), and he is one of the directors who can build a convincing and charming story out of fairly sheer dramatic material.

Betty Bronson, the lovely child who won her laurels in her first picture, "Peter Pan," is the quaint little heroine; and the third personality of the trio is the dashing Ricardo Cortez, who shows himself an artist in a role that is far from Spanish.

"Not So Long Ago" has a delightful Cinderella sort of theme, and it dates back to the picturesque 50's with New York at the stage of flourishing into its first importance. Thirty years before motor cars were perfected and fifteen years before the riding of the perilous bicycle became a fad, Michael Dover spent his last dollar working to perfect a steam-propelled vehicle. Betty, his sweet little daughter, seeks employment as a seamstress in the home of the fashionable Mrs. Ballard. Betty dreams dreams concerning herself and the handsome Billy Ballard, son of her wealthy mistress, and Fifth Avenue's "Beau Brummel"; and, of course, the dreams come true after many trying experiences and many exciting situations involving the young lovers, the old inventor and many New York celebrities of three-quarters of a century ago.

The backgrounds are outstandingly lovely, and the personalities of the players ideally suited to the romance which Mr. Olcott has built so skillfully.

SHEA'S

Two internationally known stars head the list of attractions at Shea's next week. Marie Cahill, comedienne of many musical successes, and Cecilia (Cissie) Loftus, share headline honours. Miss Loftus gives "Impressions of Stage Favourites of To-day and Yesterday." This is a return engagement for Miss Loftus, who delighted Shea's-goers during the spring.

Moss & Frey, coloured comedians, originators of "How High Is Up?" will be seen and heard after a long absence.

Dave Ferguson, another favourite with Shea's-goers, has not been seen in many seasons. This well-known character comedian has returned to vaudeville in a sketch by Paul Gerard Smith, "The Lucky Stiff." He is supported by a clever company of six.

Lillian Boardman and Eugene Rowland are heard in a song recital. Paul Paulsen and Company in new aerial novelties, Takio and his jungle film and an Aesop Fable complete the bill.

EMPIRE

"I owe my success, both as an actress and as a successful producer, to learning first hand from the public its likes and dislikes regarding stage entertainments," confides Mollie Williams, who comes to the Empire Theatre at the head of her own show, week of September 28. "I discovered this for myself when I was a chorus girl," continues Miss Williams, "for any time I wasn't at work in a show I would attend other performances, and, seated among the audience, note what they had to say about the people on the stage—particularly the women. It was considering these comments that inspired me to seek advancement. After becoming a principal I continued to mingle with theatre audiences and it was due to this habit of observation that I detected the shortcomings in the productions of the other managers. Then I decided to experiment as a producer myself using my experience with audiences to safeguard me in my work. Now I never produce a show that I do not sit among my audience, whenever I have an opportunity and make notes of their comments."

ABBOTT'S STRAND

"Giggles" is the beguiling title of the burlesque show coming to Abbott's Strand Theatre for the week commencing September 28 and no producing manager in this field is better qualified to present this form of entertainment than Joe Leavitt. He has a carefully selected company of capable performers and the dancing and singing chorus is reported to be above the average in looks and action. The chorus is said to have been recruited from the dancing academies of New York and Philadelphia. Best known in the cast of "Giggles" are Sid Rogers and Bert Marks, versatile fun makers; Lew Harris, clever "straight" man, who was born in Toronto; Miss Sedal Bennett, a Junoesque leading women; Mildred Simmons, a charming ingenue; and Ranee De Marse and Helen Myles, soubrettes of different types and methods. A complete and beautiful scenic production is promised and as the title intimates, the entertainment will be of the gayest sort that should provoke continuous laughter. Matinees will be given every afternoon and the ladies are now attending these performances in large numbers.

Emanuel Hartzell, aged 77, one of the best-known merchants of Youngstown, died at his home, 340 Logan Avenue, on August 26. He was born in Germany and came to this country in 1865. Mr. Hartzell had been a resident of Youngstown for many years and had been one of the most highly esteemed of the city's older business men from the beginning of his career in Youngstown in 1888, when he and his brother, Isaac, opened their store. Mr. Hartzell was very active in all charitable works. He belonged to nearly every charitable organization in Youngstown and gave his time and money unsparingly to the support of other charities outside of the city, Jewish and undenominational. Until his resignation, about a year ago, he was one of the trustees of the Montefiore Home in Cleveland.

and was now to be deprived of all without compensation. Accordingly he demanded a preliminary reimbursement of all the expenditure which he had undergone for Consola since the day of their first acquaintance. Until he received this he refused to grant her freedom, so that she would be condemned to live indefinitely in a state of perpetual grass-widowhood. The news of this mean and cowardly action was soon reported abroad, and aroused general indignation. Gone now was the forbearance which had previously characterized the dispute, and the anonymity with which the identity of the principals had hitherto been discreetly veiled. The Rabbis of Ancona culminated the excommunication against the recalcitrant, now for the first time mentioned by name. None might have dealings with him, none do him any favour, none instruct him, none even help in his burial, unless he conceded to his unfortunate bride the treatment which authority and equity alike imposed. To this the Rabbis of Rome, Leghorn, Florence, Ferrara, Mantua, Reggio, Modena, Casale and Allessandria all subscribed—nearly all who had taken part in the earlier dispute, and a few more. No doubt he at last yielded, and the excommunication was withdrawn. But history should be less indulgent in relaxing the ban. Castello's offense against her was gravest of all; for what misdemeanour could be worse then introducing so sordid an ending to the most delicate and dramatic love-idyll that ever delighted the mind of the student or graced the pages of a rabbinic law book?—The Jewish Courier.
